Abstract: A comprehensive framework for evaluating patient's physical, mental and temperamental characteristics is offered by Murphy's Homoeopathic Medical Repertory Constitution Chapter, which helps with the exact remedy selection process. Body type, temperament, miasms and environmental factors are all addressed, combining traditional and contemporary homoeopathic ideas.

Keywords: Repertory, Constitution, Rubrics, Remedies, Homoeopathy, Modern, Miasms

1. Introduction

The author characterises The Homoeopathic Medical Repertory as "A Modern Alphabetical Repertory" that was designed to be a modern, practical and easy to use reference guide." Kent's Repertory of the Materia Medica, which has sections on various body parts, and Phatak's A Concise Repertory of Homoeopathic Medicines, which is entirely alphabetical and devoid of any sections, are hybrids. The seventy-four sections in this repertory are arranged alphabetically and the rubrics for each section are similarly arranged alphabetically.¹ Using Hahnemann's miasmatic theory, he has attempted to correlate Psora, Syphilis, and Sycosis with the three Paracelsus philosophical principles of sulphur, mercury, and salt.²

The words "Repertory" and "Constitution" in homoeopathy allude to two crucial but different facets of treatment. A repertory is a methodical list of symptoms or rubrics, that are connected to possible solutions. Two well-known instances are Murphy's and Kent's repertory, which Sort symptoms according to bodily systems or ailments to make choosing a cure easier.

A person's constitution, on the other hand, describes their entire physical, mental and emotional makeup, including their body type, personality traits, genetic tendencies, and chronic sickness patterns.³ In addition to resolving existing grievances, a constitutional remedy is chosen to enhance the person's general health and vigor, frequently on a more profound, long-term level.

3. Conclusion

A key component of Murphy's Repertory is the Constitution chapter, which offers a structured yet adaptable framework that improves the precision of constitutional prescribing. Because of its wide rubrics, alphabetical arrangement, and conformity with Hahnemannian concepts, it is an essential tool for practitioners who aim to treat the full person. It should be used in conjunction with other chapters for best results, especially in complex cases, to guarantee a thorough totality of symptoms. Further investigation into its rubrics in various clinical settings may strengthen its place in evidence-based homoeopathic practice.
